TELEVISION WATCHING.

"The motor car has certainly changed the lives of this generation. Shoppers won't come to shops without car parks, so car parks have come to the shops in the new shopping centres. So also with cinemas, banks, and what else?"

"And now we have become used to getting within a few feet of normally shy birds by keeping in the car, and even our movements inside it don't usually disturb them, though of course they are off the moment we get out. This has made us girls be bold take the car out on the edge of swamps where cars can't go, so if you see a theatrical stage cut out of a car moving along some unlikely road propelled by four feet at the bottom of it, it will be us in our new potential 'birds', telescopic cameras and all."
